ANSWER ALL THE QUESTIONS

QUESTION 1 (multiple-choice questions) [10 marks in total]

Questions 1.1. – 1.10. are multiple-choice questions designed to assess your ability to think critically about the subject. Please read each question carefully before reading the answer options. Be aware that some questions may seem to have more than one right answer, but you are to look for the one that makes the most sense and is the most correct. When you have a clear idea of the question, find your answer and mark your selection on the answer sheet by highlighting the relevant paragraph in yellow. Select only ONE answer. Candidates who select more than one answer will receive no mark for that specific question.

Question 1.1

Unlike (former) continental insolvency rules, the English insolvency laws provided for a rather liberal discharge of debt provision since 1570. Select the most accurate response to this statement from (a) - (d) below.

- (a) This statement is correct since the English insolvency system was viewed as a procreditor system since its early development.
- (b) This statement is correct since the English insolvency system, unlike continental systems, never provided for imprisonment for debt of insolvents and preferred to treat debtors in a humane way.
- (c) This statement is incorrect since a statutory discharge of debt was only introduced in 1705 in England.
- (d) This statement is incorrect since most of the continental insolvency rules provided for a liberal discharge of debt even before English law considered the introduction of such a dispensation.

Question 1.2

English insolvency law was not affected by the Covid-19 pandemic to date. Select the most accurate response to this statement from (a) - (d) below.

- (a) This statement is correct since the UK decided to merely provide financial aid to financially troubled entities and individuals.
- (b) This statement is correct since the legislative reform process in the UK is too slow to effect amendments to an elaborate piece of legislation such as its Insolvency Act of 1986.
- (c) This statement is correct since the English insolvency law already provided special rules to deal with extreme socio-economic situations like those brought about by global disasters such as the Covid-19 pandemic.
- (d) The statement is incorrect since the UK did review parts of its insolvency rules and amended some, amongst other things, to deal with the negative economic fall out of the pandemic.

Question 1.3

Since the Dutch insolvency system is rather outdated when compared with English or American insolvency / bankruptcy laws, it does not provide for a modern scheme of arrangement that could be used to reorganise or rescue a company in distress. Select the most accurate response to this statement from (a) – (d) below.

- (a) This statement is correct since the Dutch insolvency system does not provide for a discharge of debt and without such a dispensation in place, a scheme of arrangement will not be functional.
- (b) This statement is correct since the Dutch government has not approved such legislation yet.
- (c) This statement is incorrect since the Dutch in fact introduced new legislation in this regard in 2000 already.
- (d) This statement is incorrect since the Dutch quite recently adopted legislation in this regard and it became operational on 1 January 2021.

Question 1.4

There is no real need for the reform and establishment of a more uniform set of cross-border insolvency rules since the courts of the various States around the globe are well-equipped to deal with such issues by way of judicial discretion and since the broad rules of local insolvency legal systems are largely the same. Select the most accurate response to this statement from (a) - (d) below.

- (a) This statement is correct since courts cooperating across jurisdictional borders are familiar with global insolvency principles.
- (b) This statement is correct since courts across the globe are inclined to apply comity as a principle to assist foreign estate representatives to deal with cross-border insolvency matters in a coherent way.

(c) The statement is not correct since both local insolvency systems as well as cross-border insolvency rules differ quite significantly in many respects.

(d) This statement is correct since apart from the wide discretion that judges in general have, the UNCITRAL Model Law on Cross-Border Insolvency has been adopted by the majority of UN Member States, hence these rules are well-known to judges across the globe.

Question 1.5

Universalism has become the main approach regarding the application of cross-border insolvency rules around the globe since the majority of States follow a strict adherence to comity. Select the most accurate response to this statement from (a) - (d) below.

(a) The statement is not correct because very few States allow insolvent estate representatives to deal with assets of a foreign debtor situated in their own jurisdiction without some form of a (prior) local procedure to recognise the foreign insolvency proceeding.

- (b) The statement is correct because universality has become the norm in the majority of States in cross-border insolvency matters since the introduction of the UNCITRAL Model Law on Cross-Border Insolvency in 1997.
- (c) The statement is correct because the prevalent approach of modified territoriality amounts to a universal embracement of universalism amongst the majority of States around the globe.
- (d) The statement is not correct because important international policy-making bodies such as the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the World Bank Group and the United Nations still support strong territoriality in cases of cross-border insolvency cases.

QUESTION 2 (direct questions) [10 marks]

Question 2.1 [maximum 3 marks]

Briefly indicate three significant (historical) developments regarding debt collection procedures in English law that shaped the way of thinking concerning modern insolvency law.

Two fundamental principles stemmed from the English Bankruptcy Act of 1542. The first one being the creditors collectively participating in the administration. The second one was the pari passu distribution between the creditors, meaning that based on the claim of the creditor the available assets were proportionately distributed. The first law which was designed as a true bankruptcy statute as oppose to a fraud-prevention act was the 1570 Act of Elizabeth. Under the Act of Elizabeth a creditor could open a bankruptcy proceeding following an "act of bankruptcy" by the debtor, however, there was no discharge provision. The notion of a statutory discharge of debt was only introduced later in 1705 under the Statute of Ann for debtors who had co-operated during the proceedings.

Elaboration would be beneficial to clearly set out the development and how it shaped modern insolvency thinking. With respect to discharge, for example, it would be beneficial to elaborate on how it shaped modern thinking regarding 'fresh start'.

Question 2.2 [maximum 3 marks]

Following the Covid-19 pandemic, States across the globe had to introduce measures to deal with the negative economic fall out of this pandemic. Briefly indicate three insolvency and insolvency-related measures so introduced in the UK.

Three measures introduced by the UK following the COVID-19 pandemic were the suspension of winding-up petitions and statutory demands, the relaxation of wrongful trading liability and new moratorium rules which were all reforms under the Corporate Insolvency and Governance Act 2020.

Further elaboration would improve the mark for this sub-question. While it does say 'briefly', the sub-question is for 3 marks.

Question 2.3 [maximum 4 marks]

Briefly explain the concept of treaties and "soft law" and indicate how these may be used to establish cross-border insolvency rules in States.

Both treaties and "soft law" aim to regulate international insolvencies. Within a treaty, States become signatories and bind themselves to domestic laws enforceable in the courts. "Soft law" on the other hand is not binding and instead is used to influence regulation of international insolvencies. "Soft law" has proved more successful in achieving solutions to international insolvency law issues than treaties or "hard law".

Further elaboration would improve the mark for this sub-question. While it does say 'briefly', the sub-question is for 4 marks.

QUESTION 3 (essay-type questions) [15 marks in total]

Question 3.1 [maximum 5 marks]

202122-584.assessment1summative

Briefly discuss the various possible different sources of insolvency laws in any State and how they may interact with each other.

Each state may have a range of different laws that influence and come into effect during an insolvency engagement. In countries like the USA, a single unified piece of bankruptcy legislation covers all aspects of bankruptcy. Australia on the other hand has a separate legislation dealing with corporate insolvency and personal insolvency. There are similarities and differences in principles that can be applied in personal and corporate insolvencies. For example whilst a company is dissolved once it has been wound up, the same does not apply to an individual in a bankruptcy. Common law often fills in any gaps that insolvency law doesn't cover for systems based on the common law. The General law of a State will also influence an insolvency proceeding as it covers aspects such as property law and ownership which are commonly dealt with in proceedings.

Question 3.2 [maximum 5 marks]

A number of difficulties arise in cross-border insolvencies, including as a result of differences in laws between States. Harmonisation of insolvency laws is pursued. In an attempt to bring the "cross-border" aspects and the "insolvency" aspects together, Fletcher asks three very pertinent questions. Discuss these pertinent questions / issues raised by Fletcher.

The three questions raised by Fletcher highlight some of the potential difficulties faced by States in cross-border insolvencies and reiterate the fact that each proceeding is unique and facts and rulings may change. The first question rightfully pluralizes 'jurisdiction' as it is possible to run proceedings concurrently in more State than one. What are the consequences of this? The answer to the second question doesn't have to be a single State as each State is able to apply their own laws in respect to the case. The answer to the last question around international effects on proceedings is that there will be minimal or no extraterritorial effects granted.

It would be beneficial to set out the questions. Further elaboration is also warranted – while Q 3.2 asks for a brief note, it is for 5 marks.

Question 3.3 [maximum 5 marks]

It is said that "co-ordination agreements are sometimes known as Protocols or Cross-border Insolvency Agreements. Their growing acceptance internationally is evident in the work by the ALI-III in their Guidelines Applicable to Court-to-Court Communication in Cross-Border Cases; by UNICTRAL in their Practice Guide on Cross-border Insolvency Agreements; and by the Judicial Insolvency Network in their Guidelines for Communication and Cooperation between Courts in Cross-Border Insolvency Matters…"

It is also said that "While court approval of such agreements for the purposes of co-ordinating insolvency proceedings is encouraged by the MLCBI, they in fact pre-date the Model Law."

Briefly discuss a prominent case law example for this last quotation.

The 1991 cross-border insolvency case, Maxwell Communications Corporation plc, ran concurrent principal insolvency proceedings in the United States under Chapter 11 and in England under administration proceedings. These were co-ordinated via an "Order and Protocol" approved by each States court. The proceedings were initiated by a single debtor and there were two different insolvency representatives in each State with similar responsibilities. Both judges from each State agreed that an agreement between the administrations could resolve conflict and facilitate the exchange of information. Whilst many issues were left out of the agreement to be resolved during the proceedings, there were two main goals. The first was to maximise the value of the estate and the second to harmonize proceedings to minimize expense, waste and conflict. The parties from each State successfully implemented the agreement which co-ordinatated the complex international insolvency.

This answer displays a satisfactory understanding. To improve your responses, ensure they are commensurate with the mark allocation – while Q 3.3 asks for a brief note, it is for 5 marks.

QUESTION 4 (fact-based application-type question) [15 marks in total]

Rydell Co Ltd (Rydell) is an incorporated company with offices in the UK and throughout Europe. Its centre of main interest (COMI) is in the UK. Rydell supplies engine parts for large vehicles, including airplanes, and has had a downturn in business due to border closures and travel restrictions throughout the Covid-19 pandemic.

Rydell's main creditor is Fernz Co Ltd (Fernz) which is incorporated in a country in Europe that is a member of the EU. Fernz is considering commencing proceedings or pursuing other options with respect to recovering unpaid debts from Rydell.

There are a number of other creditors owed money by Rydell, who are located throughout different countries in Europe which are all members of the European Union.

If you require additional information to answer the questions that follow, briefly state what information it is you require and why it is relevant.

Question 4.1 [maximum 7 marks]

An insolvency proceeding against Rydell was opened in the UK by a minor creditor on 18 June 2020. A month later, Fernz was considering also opening proceedings in another country in Europe which was a member of the European Union.

Discuss if and how the European Insolvency Regulation Recast would apply. Also note what further information, if any, you might require to fully consider this question.

The European Insolvency Regulation (EIR) Recast considers where the COMI is situated and allocates jurisdictional competence to the courts of that member State. The first issue to consider is whether the States involved are part of the European Union (EU) and therefore whether the EIR Recast applies. As the States involved in the Rydell situation are in Europe and the UK they are both member states within the EU as at 18 June 2020. As the COMI of Rydell is in the UK, the UK courts will be allocated jurisdictional competence under the EIR Recast. It would be beneficial to consider the timing of the proceedings and when the EIR Recast ceased to apply to UK proceedings.

The EIR Recast also allows for a subsidiary territorial proceeding in other member States where the debtor has an establishment, meaning, a place of operations where non-transitory economic activity occurs with human means and assets. The subsidiary proceedings may be independent or secondary depending on when they were opened in relation to the main proceeding. As Rydell has operations and offices throughout Europe it is possible that a secondary proceeding may be opened. The proceeding would be secondary as it will be opened after the main proceeding in the UK. We first need to know if the country Fernz is considering opening proceedings in is a country that Rydell is considered to have an establishment. Would some further information regarding establishment be beneficial?

Question 4.2 [maximum 3 marks]

How would your answer to 4.1 differ if the proceedings were opened in the UK on 18 June 2021 instead of 18 June 2020? Also note what further information, if any, might become relevant.

From 11pm on 31 December 2020, the EIR Recast ceased to apply in the UK following its exit from the EU. As the UK is no longer a member State the EIR Recast would not apply to the Rydell proceedings in the UK.

Further elaboration is warranted. Also, what information might be relevant to determine what laws might apply?

Question 4.3 [maximum 5 marks]

Consider an alternative situation now. What if Rydell were unregistered with its COMI in a country in Europe that was a member of the European Union, instead of the UK, and formal insolvency proceedings were opened in the UK on 18 June 2021? What UK domestic laws would be relevant to consider whether the minor creditor could commence those formal insolvency proceedings in the UK?

The domestic laws within the UK that would be relevant to deal with Rydell's creditor would be those that cover corporate bankruptcy as Rydell is an incorporated company. These include the Insolvency Act 1986 which was partly amended in the Insolvency Act 2000 and the Enterprise Act 2002. Common law principles may also be applicable to consider in the UK proceedings.

Section 221(5) of the Insolvency Act 1986 provides jurisdiction to wind up a foreign company which was incorporated outside of the UK under three circumstances. The circumstances are if the company is dissolved or is ceasing it's business, if the company is unable to pay it's debts and if the court is of the opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up.

We have not been advised whether Rydell was in fact incorporated in the UK or not so it is important to note that it is possible for a winding-up order to be commenced in the UK irrespective of where Rydell was incorporated.

Matters pertaining to 'sufficient connection' should be considered in detail.
