| What is the difference between a voluntary petition for bankruptcy and an involuntary petition for bankruptcy? | |
| A Voluntary Proceeding can be commenced by the debtor under any chapter through filing of a petition with the schedules required by the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure. Even without the schedules (a so called "naked Petition') the stay will come into force and a case commence under the Bankruptcy Code. The form of admission of a Voluntary Proceeding for a corporate entity is short with a requirement to disclose funds on hand, number of creditors, assets and liabilities and there is no need for an insolvency statement. Involuntary proceedings take place under Chapters 7 or 11 of the Bankruptcy Code and cannot be commenced under the chapters nor against farmers, family farmers or non-profits. The number of petition creditors depends on creditors the entity has. The creditors must qualify as petitioning creditors. The petitioning creditors must allege the debtor is generally not paying its debts when due or that, within 120 days prior to petition, a custodian was appointed and | Commented [H(15]: Correct, 1 mark |

Appeals from the bankruptcy courts are either heard in the district court for the district the bankruptcy courts sits in or, if they are formed in the circuit in which the bankruptcy court has handed down judgement, a Bankruptcy Appellate Panel (BAP) for that district. Notwithstanding that there may be a BAP for a district parties may always elect to be heard by the district court instead of the BAP. From the district court or BAP a further appeal of right can be made to the circuit court of appeals. Three are unusual circumstances under 28 USC 158(d) where appeal may go directly from the bankruptcy court to the relevant court of appeals.

The standard of review depends on whether it is a core proceeding or non-core. If it is a core proceeding the relevant appeals forum looks at the findings of law afresh and reviews findings of fact or any wrongly applied discretion. If it was non-core then all findings of law or fact that are being appealed are reviewed afresh.

The appeal removes the right of the relevant bankruptcy court from reviewing its own decision but does not stay the effects of the decision. It is possible to apply to the bankruptcy court (or, due to delay, the appellate court) for a stay of the effects of the underlying appealed judgment. A stay will only be grated where the applicant can show that it would suffer genuine harm with will occur prior to the appeal and would be irreparable.

Question 3.4 (5 marks)

What fiduciary duties do directors of Delaware corporations owe and to whom are the duties owed in the ordinary course of business? To whom are duties owed when the corporation is potentially or actually insolvent?

In Delaware directors owe a fiduciary duty of loyalty to the corporation's best interest' and they a owe a 'duty of care to be educated in their decision making'. They are protected in their actions by the 'business judgement rule' where the board of directors is assumed to have acted in good faith and on the basis of reasonable information. This 'business judgement rule' will shelter the directors from liability for anything (other than gross negligence) unless an interested party is able to rebut the presumption that they have acted in good faith or without a basis in reasonable information. The proving of 'bad faith' on the part of someone else is difficult as it requires clear evidence of intention on the part of another and generally evidence of the intention of another is hard to establish. Furthermore it is also possible in Delaware for a corporation to further shelter its directors from liability for breach of duty of care by limiting any such liability in the certificate of incorporation for that corporate body (Del Gen Corp L, 102(b)(7))

The 'business judgement rule' will not have application where the majority of the board has an interest in the transaction and a shareholder (independent or connected) is on both sides of the transaction. In that case the test is whether the 'entire fairness standard' is met otherwise the relevant transaction would be void. The entire fairness standard is a heightened standard to the business judgement rule requiring that the board of directors show that they have conducted a thorough process to determine that the transaction comprised both a 'fair price' and a 'fair dealing'.

The duties of a corporate entity registered in Delaware are in marked in contrast to the UK common law derived countries where the board, generally, owes a clear duty to act in the best interest of the corporates shareholders whilst it is solvent. Once a corporate is insolvent (the precise test being one set out in the relevant jurisdiction but generally is a balance sheet or cash flow test or both) then the board owes its duties to the creditors and no longer the shareholders. In many English law derived jurisdictions, this is then over laid with laws which prevent insolvent or wrongful trading'. These laws generally give rise to personal liability for those directors which breach the relevant rule by trading whilst insolvent. Clearly this is a significant difference to the Delaware position where director liability is much more shielded in an insolvency position; see Trenwick Am Litig Trust v Ernst & Young LLP.

| Gambling Corporation is incorporated and has a principal place of business in Greece and it operates casinos and betting parlors in many international cities, including Athens, Las Vegas, London and Macau. Gambling Corp's bonds (governed by English law) are due to mature in one (1) year, but it is unable to repay or refinance them. Gambling Corp is considering using an English scheme of arrangement to restructure the bonds. | |
| Discuss whether the English scheme of arrangement could be granted recognition under US chapter 15 as a foreign main or foreign non-main proceeding. | |
| Chapter 15 of the Bankruptcy Code incorporates into US law the UNCITRAL Model Law on Recognition of Foreign Insolvency proceeding's. It is the section of the Bankruptcy Code under which a foreign representative may seek recognition of those foreign proceedings. Looking at the elements to qualify under Chapter 15: The filing for recognition must be made by the foreign representative ('FR') of the insolvent debtor The FR needs to show that a foreign proceeding will come within Chapter 15 if it is a 'collective judicial or administrative proceeding in a foreign country' [] 'under a law relating to insolvency or adjustment of debt in which proceeding the assets and affairs of the debtor are subject to control or supervision by a foreign court, for the purpose of reorganisation or liquidation' (11 USC 101(23)) The FR needs to show it is empowered by that foreign proceeding | |
| An English Scheme of Arrangement has be held to qualify under Ch 15 and there is nothing in the fact pattern above to think this would be different and nothing to suggest the narrowly held public policy exception would apply. | |
| Having qualified as recognisable under Ch 15 the US court must characterise the foreign proceeding as a 'foreign main' or 'foreign non-main' proceeding. This characterisation gives rise to the relief available. | |
| Foreign main proceedings are proceedings taking place in the location of the debtors 'centre of main interests' (its 'COMI'). A debtor's COMI is rebuttably presumed to be its place of incorporation. It is the place where third parties can readily ascertain that the debtor's main place of business and management takes place. The test is an objective test and factors such as the whereabouts of head office, management, principal assets, a majority of creditors or the law governing most of its disputes. | Commented [H(50]: Correct, 1 mark |
| The connection to England and Wales appears from the fact pattern appears to be the governing law of the bonds, whilst this is a factor to be considered it does not look to be sufficient to displace the presumption of the place of incorporation (Greece) which also is its principal place of business. Clearly a much more detailed analysis would be required to finally determine this issue. | Commented [H(51]: Correct, 1 mark |
| If proceedings are started in a jurisdiction other than that where the debtors COMI is located then it is possible to seek Ch 15 recognition provided that the debtor has an 'establishment' in that location. An establishment is found where the debtor carries out 'non-transitory' economic activity. From the fact pattern the debtor owns and operates a casino or betting parlour in London so it would appear to qualify as having an establishment. | Commented [H(52]: Correct, 1 mark, this would be recognition as foreign non-main proceedings Commented [H(53]: Correct, 1 mark |

| On recognition of a non-main proceedings the US courts have a number of discretionary reliefs that they may grant but there is no automatic relief. Any relief is with respect to the debtors property within the territorial jurisdiction of the US. It may grant a stay in relation to the assets, permit the FR to operate the debtor's business in the US, approve a sale transfer or use of the debtor's property which is outside of the ordinary course, avoid post-petition transfers and post-petition perfection of security, authorise discovery against the debtor's assets, extend provisional relief and 'any other relief necessary to effectuate the purposes of Ch 15 and protect the assets pf the debtor or interests of its creditors'. In the case of non-main proceedings, the US court must be satisfied that any relief is appropriate under US law for the assets in the US to be administered in the foreign non-main proceeding. | Commented [H(54]: Total marks 5/5 |

| Oil Corporation is incorporated in Delaware and has its principal place of business in Texas. Oil Corp is facing a number of challenges to its business. First, ShipCo, one of its key customers, has filed a breach of contract lawsuit in Texas state court alleging that Oil Corp sold it contaminated oil that caused USD 1 billion in damage to ShipCo's container ships. Second, the US Department of Justice is investigating whether Oil Corp illegally purchased oil from countries subject to US sanctions. Third, Oil Corp. has missed a payment on its secured loan from USA Bank, and USA Bank is threatening to foreclose on an Oil Corp refinery located in the Philippines. Fourth, because of all these distractions, Oil Corp has forgotten to pay rent on its Houston, Texas office space and its landlord is threatening to evict it. What would be the effect of Oil Corp filing a chapter 11 petition on each of these four situations? | |
| Upon filing of a plenary bankruptcy proceedings including under Ch 11, an 'estate' is created on the 'petition date' of all the debtors assets and interests in relation to which an automatic stay on enforcement arises at that date. USC 11 362(a) specifically sets out a set of prohibitions on post stay actions. Turning to the issues set out in the fact scenario: | Commented [H(55]: Correct, 1 mark |
| Texas State Court suit Any litigation against the estate is stayed on the petition date | Commented [H(56]: Correct, 1 mark |
| Breach of US Sanctions law Regulatory and criminal investigations are exempt from the stay under USC 11 362(b) so these will continue | Commented [H(57]: Correct, 1 mark |
| Foreclosure over Philippines refinery by USA Bank The US stay applies globally to all assets to of the debtor wherever situate. Any action abroad against the assets would give rise to contempt proceedings and therefore, as a practical matter, would only be taken by someone who would not come within the practical jurisdiction of the US court system. In this case that is unlikely to be the case for 'USA Bank' so I would think that it would stay its enforcement action in the Philippines to avoid any contempt issues. | Commented [H(58]: Correct, 1 mark |
| Houston landlord eviction The stay prohibits any act to obtain possession or control of the property of the debtors estate. The unpaid rent will be a pre=petition claim on the estate. This lease is an executory contract and therefore the debtor will, prior to filing the Ch 11 plan, have to affirm, reject or assign the lease. Continued occupation will be affirmation by conduct. | Commented [H(59]: Correct, 1 mark |

Oil Corp has filed for bankruptcy and is planning to sell its plastic manufacturing business through a 363 sale. The plastic manufacturing business operates under the trademark "Interconnect", which is licensed from Plastic Corp. Oil Corp has invented several patented processes for plastic manufacturing, which it licenses to Plastic Corp. The main manufacturing facility for the plastic business is in Dallas, and Oil Corp has granted a lien on the facility to USA Bank to secure its USD 500 million loan.

Oil Corp thinks it will get the highest return for the plastics manufacturing business if it can (i) assume and assign the trademark license; (ii) reject the patent licenses so the purchaser has the exclusive right to use the patents; and (iii) sell the manufacturing facility free and clear of the USA Bank lien. Can Oil Corp achieve each of these goals without the consent of Plastic Corp and USA Bank? Why or why not?

A debtor in Ch 11 may deal with its assets in the ordinary course of its business without the need to get court approvals. Ordinary course sales have been examined by the Courts as the test is not contained within the Bankruptcy Code. The courts have come up with a double test looking at the 'vertical dimension' and the 'horizontal dimension'. The proposed sale of the plastics manufacturing business is unlikely to be an 'ordinary course' sale and therefore a section 363 sale is required. A s 363 sale has the advantage of being court approved and free of any creditor interests. A creditor approval is not required where the creditor interest is disputed or the value of the asset exceeds the creditor's claim on the asset (the claim overreaching into the cash proceeds). Any purchaser under a s.363 sale is entitled to take the property free and clear without any possibility of an unwind even where the court approval is subsequently appealed and reversed.

A debtor has the power during a Ch 11 proceeding to 'assume', 'reject' or 'assign' an 'executory contract'. An executory contract is a contract on both sides of which there are unperformed obligations. For example a lease of property has the unperformed obligations to make the space available to the tenant and the obligation to pay rent to the landlord by the tenant.

In Ch 11 the decision by the debtor whether to reject/affirm/affirm and assign must be made prior to the confirmation of the Ch 11 reorganisation plan except in the case of real (non-residential) property where it must be made within 120 days of the order for relief.

The debtor must use its judgment in good faith and using reasonable business judgement when making its choices about what to do in relation to a contract. The choice must facilitate a restructuring of the debtor in the case of Ch 11.

Rejection of the contract – this gives rise to the contract being deemed breached just prior to the petition date and therefore a pre-petition unsecured claim for damages for the creditor. Assumption of the contract – to assume the debtor must cure any defaults and provide assurance of its good performance in the future.

Assume and assign – this allows the debtor to transfer its rights under the contract to a third party who gives the counterparty adequate assurance of future good performance. This is of most use where Ch 11 is being used to facilitate a pre-pack into a new vehicle. Any contractual prohibitions on assignment are over ridden under Ch 11 unless it is a loan contract or where Bankruptcy law prohibits overriding of consent requirements.

I note that OilCorp is incorporated in Delaware which falls in to the 3rd circuit of appeals. Courts in the Third Circuit apply the 'hypothetical test' when considering assumption of contracts by the debtor. A debtor can only assume a contract in the Third circuit (and fourth, ninth and eleventh circuits) if there is no prohibition on assignment. In other words they cannot assume a contract where there is a prohibition on assignment. Whether this is relevant will depend on where the Ch 11 is filed and OilCorp has a number of options as venue is proper in courts where a range of business activities takes place and is not tied to incorporation per se. If the petition was filed in Texas (as OilCorps main place of business that would be a proper venue) then the hypothetical test would not apply and prohibitions on assignment are only relevant in the case of affirmation and assignment.

Looking at the questions in turn

| (i) (ii) (iii) | Can it assume and assign the trademark licence: A licence is an executory contract in that the licence requires the grantor to give the grantee a use in return for an ongoing payment. On both sides there should be unfulfilled obligations. The only exception would be where the licence was given for a lump sum and specified term where no further requirements on behalf of the transferee remain to be performed. If it is an executory contract, assignment to a third party depends on where the court with supervision of the Ch 11 is situate as explained above. Generally trademark licences cannot be assigned without consent. Whether the consent will be overridden by Ch 11 will depend on the nature of the asset, generally intellectual property rights are not overridden by Ch 11 because they are protected by non-Bankruptcy IP law, Therefore, If protected by non-bankruptcy IP law, it is unlikely that OilCorp will be able to assume and assign the licence without PlasticCorp's consent[If it is not protected by substantive non- Bankruptcy law then OilCorp needs to show that its assumption and assignment is based on the best business judgement of OilCorp made in good faith and in the reasonable exercise of judgement of the management of OilCorp. Can it reject the patent licences so the purchaser [of the plastics business] has the exclusive right to use the patents: Patent licences have a similar performance pattern to the trade mark licences mentioned above and therefore are likely to have unperformed obligations on both sides making them executory. [A licence is granted by the debtor is protected under 11 USC 3. 365(n) without the consent of the licensee]. In this case any sale by OilCorp would require the consent of PlasticCorp]. Self the manufacturing facility free and clear of treditor interests with court approval in a s. 363 Sale (see 11 USC s.363(f)) where the creditor has consented, where the sale price of the asset exceeds the secured debt or where the creditor interests in the asset is disputed].
