What is setoff and why is it not permitted in many circumstances?
Setoff is the concept whereby a creditor holding a claim against a debtor - and simultaneously owing money to the debtor - nets out the two (or more) obligations.	Commented [H(15]: Correct, 1/2 mark
The US Bankruptcy Code exempts the exercise of rights of setoff arising under non-bankruptcy law from avoidance as preferences in many circumstances.
Setoff is not permitted in many such circumstances - including for example, where a creditor's claim is disallowed, or its claim against a debtor's estate was acquired post-petition or in the 90 days prior to the petition at a time when the debtor was insolvent
- because such rights can improve the position of a creditor to the detriment of other unsecured creditors who are not owed money by the debtor since it decreases its obligation to the estate by the full amount owed by the debtor rather than the lesser amount the debtor would pay on the unsecured claim.	Commented [H(16]: Correct, 1/2 mark

In North Am Catholic Educational Programming Foundation Incv- Gheewalla (2007), the Delaware Supreme Court confirmed that directors do not owe duties to creditors when a company is operating " in the zone of insolvency ", or indeed, is actually insolvent by holding that " individual creditors of an insolvent corporation have no right to assert direct claims for breach of fiduciary duty against corporate directors. Creditors may nonetheless protect their interest by bringing derivative claims on behalf of the insolvent corporation ".
Directors are protected from liability for errors of judgment by the "business judgment rule", under which the board of directors is presumed to have acted in good faith based on reasonable information. This would continue unabated. Ordinarily, upon the filing of a plenary bankruptcy proceeding, an automatic stay comes into effect immediately and, whilst the scope of the stay is extremely broad, criminal proceedings are specifically excepted under s.362(b)(1), which excludes from a stay "the commencement or continuation of a criminal action or proceeding against the debtor."

(ii) Margin Loan Default

A stay of creditor actions against Speculation Inc. automatically comes into effect when the Chapter 11 petition is filed. The filing of a petition, however, does not operate as a stay for certain types of actions listed under 11 U.S.C. § 362(b). The stay provides breathing space for Speculation Inc., during which negotiations can take place to try to resolve the difficulties in its financial situation.

The broker is a secured creditor as the shares purchased are held as collateral against the margin loan provided to Speculation Inc. It is possible, therefore, for the broker to make a relief from stay motion pleading lack of adequate protection of an interest in property of the estate of Speculation Inc. to obtain an order from the court granting relief from the automatic stay since the value of the shares held may decline during the bankruptcy proceedings. If such relief is granted, it would permit the broker to foreclose on the shares held as collateral, sell them, and apply the proceeds to the debt incurred under the loan, per Chapter 11 § 362(d).

(iii) Delinquent Lease

In Chapter 11 proceedings, unexpired leases become property of the bankruptcy estate. This allows Speculation Inc. to decide whether to assume or reject the lease. If assumed, the lease remains in effect. If rejected, Speculation Inc. is automatically deemed in breach of the agreement which allows the landlord to terminate the lease. Speculation Inc. must make its election within 120 days of the Chapter 11 petition filing, although a 90-day extension may be granted upon request. If no election is made within the allotted time, the lease is deemed rejected.

If the lease is assumed, Speculation Inc. must promptly remedy all outstanding defaults owed to landlord. Speculation Inc.'s election to assume the lease will have the effect of continuing the lease in full and any subsequent defaults are given administrative priority over all interests outside of secured creditors and will not be subject to a statutory cap on damages.

If the lease is rejected, Speculation Inc. will be in breach of the lease as of the date of rejection, which may be retroactive to the date of the Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing. Upon rejection, the landlord can no longer reinstate the lease but is entitled to 3 possible remedies: (i) administrative claims; (ii) outstanding rent incurred by Speculation Inc. prior to bankruptcy; or (iii) damages for breach of the lease.

If Speculation Inc. fails to vacate after rejection or post-assumption, and does not pay rent, the landlord may seek a stay of proceedings from the bankruptcy court allowing the landlord to pursue an unlawful detainer action to regain possession of the leased premises.

(iv) Employment Discrimination Lawsuit

Upon the automatic stay coming into effect upon the filing of the Chapter 11 petition, litigation on pre-petition claims is expressly prohibited under the US Bankruptcy Code. As such, the former employee's claim against Speculation Inc. would constitute an unsecured creditor claim and joins the pool of other unsecured creditor claims in the order of priority in the Chapter 11 proceedings.

Question 4.2 [5 marks]

Stella SA (Stella) is an international cosmetics company incorporated in France, with its headquarters in Paris. Stella's products are made in Italy and shipped to its retail stores in Europe (including England), Asia, and North America. Stella's funding comes from a bank loan and Eurobonds, both of which are governed by English law. Stella's retail sales have suffered due to pandemic-related closures and it is considering options to restructure its debt. One option is to use an English scheme of arrangement with respect to the Eurobonds. Could the English scheme of arrangement be recognized by a US bankruptcy court under Chapter 15, and would such recognition be as a foreign main or non-main proceeding?

Chapter 15 of the US Bankruptcy Code created an ancillary (as opposed to a plenary) proceeding whereby the US provides assistance to foreign proceedings in respect of the debtor - here, Stella SA. There is no reciprocity of treatment required - US courts will recognize proceedings in countries which do not recognize US proceedings.

The requirements for recognition are minimal. The foreign representative of Stella SA mut first establish that a foreign court or administrative proceeding is pending and that the foreign representative is empowered to act by the proceeding. A foreign proceeding is defined by the US Bankruptcy Code as "a collective judicial or administrative proceeding in a foreign country ... under a law relating to insolvency or adjustment of debt in which proceeding the assets and affairs of the debtor are subject to control or supervision by a foreign court, for the purpose of reorganisation or liquidation." As such, Stella SA's scheme of arrangement will be recognised by a US bankruptcy court under Chapter 15.

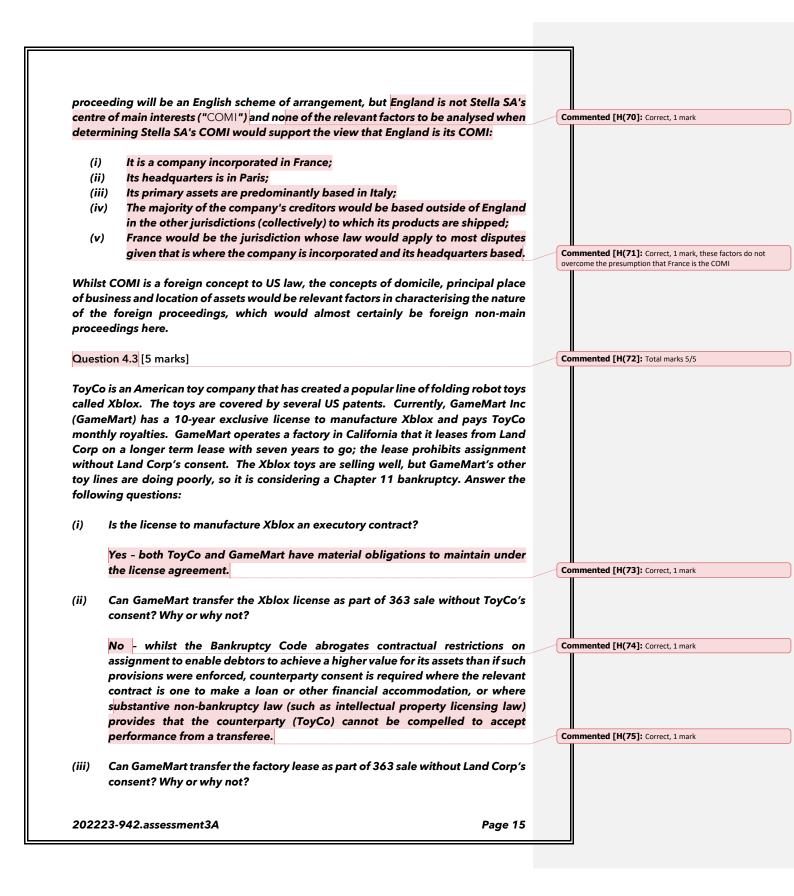

In terms of determining the scope of relief available to Stella SA following recognition, the proceedings will be characterised as foreign non-main proceedings. The foreign
