QUESTION 2 (direct questions) [10 marks]

Question 2.1 [maximum 3 marks]

Briefly discuss and compare countries whose insolvency law systems have historical roots in civil law with countries whose insolvency law systems have historical roots in English law.

For the purpose of this course, the development of insolvency or bankruptcy in civil law and English law will be taken as a point of departure, since many national or domestic legal systems are still based on one or the other.

The roots of civil law can be traced to Roman law... in the sense, debt execution developed from the debtor pledging his own body for the repayment of the loan and could be imprisoned, sentenced to death or sold as a slave in order to secure repayment of the debt.

A better approach to answering this question would involve listing countries that are historically English based and countries that are historically civil law based and discussing their differences, especially with respect to the adoption of common law in English based countries of codification in civil jurisdictions.

1.5

Question 2.2 [maximum 3 marks]

Briefly explain the difference(s) between the principle of universalism, the principle of modified universalism, and the principle of territorialism.

The principle of universalism is a philosophy that defends the idea that all human beings are equal and have the same rights and duties. Modified universalism aims to achieve extraterritorial effects, focusing on incentives and instruments that facilitate the recognition of foreign decisions. While the principle of territorialism is based on the premise that insolvency proceedings can be debtor holds assets but restrict to assets in the State where the proceedings are opened.

This question required elaboration, especially with respect to universalism and modified universalism

QUESTION 3 (essay-type questions) [15 marks in total]

Question 3.1 [maximum 7 marks]

It is said that the terms “bankruptcy” and “insolvency” may be used interchangeably. Discuss whether or not you agree with this statement, and why or why not. In your answer take care to include a discussion regarding: (i) what meaning may be ascribed to “bankruptcy” and “insolvency”, (ii) the essential characteristics of “bankruptcy” and “insolvency” and (iii) any differences that may arise when a “bankruptcy” / “insolvency” involves a corporation rather than an individual.

I completely agree with the statement listed above.

Because, bankruptcy consisted of the merchant being unable to meet his commitments due to the cessation of payments, insolvency was defined as the inferiority of the debtors assets in relation to his liabilities.

This question required greater consideration of the issues, including the essential characteristics of bankruptcy and insolvency and differences that arise. The question is for 7 marks and elaboration is needed.

Question 3.2 [maximum 5 marks]

Discuss some of the challenges which arise in cross-border insolvency that make it difficult to develop a single global cross-border insolvency dispensation.

Cross - border insolvency is a global reality. It is admitted that the main establishment of the debtor as a criterion for defining jurisdictional competence, as well as the lack of unified treatment in America (MERCUSUR) and the demands of a globalized economy that call for appropriate solutions for companies in crisis.

The problem is addressed predominantly by two doctrinal currents: The universalist and territorialist models. The first supports the concentration of applicable norms and jurisdiction as the best solutions to face all possible conflicts. Thus, the national courts of countries that hold assets or where debtors and creditors reside have the duty to provide assistance and respect the application of the governing law. In turn, territorialism defends the autonomy of the assets and creditors located in its territory according to domestic legislation.

It would be beneficial for you to also consider the matters raised by Friman, Omar and Westbrook

Question 3.3 [maximum 3 marks]

Briefly discuss what is meant by “hard law” and what is meant by “soft law” in the context of international insolvency. In your answer you should also provide examples and discuss the varying success of “hard” and “soft” laws in providing solutions to the challenges of international insolvency.

The difference between “hard law” (normative instruments with cogent force, which bind the States parties) and “soft law” (instruments devoid of this effectiveness), which is not to be confused with the enumeration of the material or formal sources of public international law (such as doctrine, customs, jurisprudence), nor with any theory about the rigidity or flexibility in the interpretation of the respective norms, nor with the concept of “jus cogens” (norms that cannot suffer any type of derogation by the States, given their fundamental significance for the international community).
